The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies or other reproductions of copyrighted material. Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a photocopy or other reproduction. One of these specified conditions is that the photocopy or other reproduction is not to be "used for any purpose other than private study, scholarship or research." If a user makes a request for, or later uses, a photocopy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," that user may be liable for copyright infringement. It is against departmental policy to duplicate manuscripts for addition to the holdings of other libraries or institutions.

Researchers must make a written request for permission to quote or publish manuscripts in the Department of Rare Books and Special Collections, or for one-time permission to reproduce images of any items found in the Department. In almost all cases the Princeton University Library only owns the physical object and therefore does not assume any responsibility for copyright or any other legal issues involved in the publication and reproduction of items in its collections. In the case of both textual and visual materials (including photographs and works of art), it is the responsibility of the user to secure permission from the appropriate copyright holder. Parish of Trinity Church in the City of New York

February 27, 2006

Dr. Brian A. Smith 2014 Valentine Street Los Angeles, CA 90026

Dear Dr. Smith,

Thank you for your interest in the records of Trinity Parish. In regard to your queries about Rebecca Southard, Henry Louis Southard and Virginia Southard Hoffman, I have discovered the following:

- 1) Our records show that Rebecca Southard of Virginia, died January 1, 1863 of meningitis and was buried in a private vault in the Trinity Church Cemetery in northern Manhattan. I have been unable to find the vault number.
- 2) We have no record of the burial of Henry Lewis Southard. The Church of the Intercession did not become a chapel affiliated with Trinity Church until 1907, and we therefore do not have records concerning the Church during the period in which you are interested. The records for the Church of the Intercession for the period 1847-1875 are located at located at: The Church of the Intercession, 550 W. 155th Street, New York, NY 10032.

3) Our records show that Virginia E. Hoffman, widow of Ogden Hoffman, died February 1, 1886 in Brunswick, Georgia. She was aged 69 years, 10 months and the cause of death was listed as gastro intestinal catarrh. She was originally buried, after a funeral in Trinity Church, on February 6th, 1886 in the Laight Vault in the north part of Trinity Churchyard behind All Saints Chapel (section N7). She was disinterred on April 28th of that year and removed to Lot 603 of the Western Division of Trinity Cemetery in northern Manhattan, a plot that she had purchased on June 1, 1863.

Again, thank you for your interest in Trinity Parish.

Sincerely,

Dorthea Sartain

Dear Dr. Smith,

What you suggest is plausible. Indeed, in researching your request I had hoped to find evidence leading to such a conclusion. I was frustrated in that effort; unfortuately, there is no evidence in the archives to support either theory. Our records simply do not record which plot Rebecca Southard was buried in. The only purchase date recorded is June 1863. Your theories will have to remain supposition unless you can find information from another source.

Needless to say, if you find such information I would appreciate it if you dropped me a line!

All the best, Dorthea Sartain, PhD Assistant Archivist

Dear Ms. Sartain.

Thank you so much for your response (2/27/06) to my request to do research on the family of the Honorable Samuel L. Southard. It was really appreciated. One question: you mention that Virginia (Southard) Hoffman was reinterred on April 28, 1886 in Lot 603, Western Division, Trinity Cemetery, which she had purchased on June 1, 1863. I visited the cemetery in November 2005 and made note of the fact that it is quite large. Is it possible that this lot and the private vault that her mother, Rebecca Southard, was buried in on January 3, 1863 are one and the same?

Two possible explanations for the date discrepancy are Virginia actually purchased lot 603 on January 1, 1863, the same day her mother died or, like Virginia, Rebecca was interred in a temporary vault, then removed to the one Virginia bought (if it is a vault) six months later.

Thanks for clarifying the relationship Trinity has with Church of the Intercession.

Again, thank you for the information you found, it was greatly

In 1856 he was a delegate from Illinois one of the electors of the State at large to the Republican Convention of 1860 at Chicago, at which President Lincoln was nominated. Shortly after he was promoted to a first lieutenancy in the same regiment, and held that rank at the commencement of 1861, when treasonable resignation made such vacancies in the regular army of the United States that, on the 16th of March, 1861, he was promoted to a captaincy with command of Company C, of the Fourth cavalry. He then stood on the lineal roll at No. 15, but at the present time he ranks much higher. On the 28th of September, 1861, he was appointed a brigadier general of volunteers. That afternoon the Anderson Pennsylvania cavalry, on McCook's Rosegarten and Ward, were killed. Crittenden's corps lost 4 killed and 21 wounded that day, including Adjutant Elliot, of the Fitty-seventh Indiana, severely. McCook's rear, on Lavergne, burned a few wagons, and captured thirty-five prisoners.

That night dispositions were made to attack the enemy in the morning. After dark the enemy was reported massing near McCook, obviously to turn our right wing. This corresponded with the wishes of Gen. Rosecrans, who a structed Gen. McCook to hold him in check stubbornly, while the left wing should be thrown into Mur freesboro behind the enemy.

At daybreak on the last day of December everything appeared working well. The battle had opened on the ight, and our left wing was on hand.

At seven o'clock eminous sounds indicated that a fire was approaching our left. Aids were despatched for in-formation, and found the forests full of flying negroes and straggling soldiers, who reported whose regiments

Meantime one of McCook's aids had announced to General Resecrans that General Johnston had permitted the three batteries of his division to be captured by a sodden attack of the enemy, and that it had somewhat demoralized our troops it was obvious.

The brave General Sill, one of our best officers, was killed, General Kirk wounded, and General Willich killed or missing, besides other valuable officers wounded. General McCook sent word to hold the front and he

The General, confident of success, continued to visit Thomas, McCoo,, Crittenden, Rousseau, Negley and Wood, the tide of battle was turned. Early in the day we were seriously embarrassed by the enterprise of rebej cavalry, who made some serious dashes upon some of McCook's ammignation and subsistence trains, capturing a number of wegens, and artillery ammunition grew

About two o'clock the battle had shifted again from right to left, the enemy discovering the impossibility of ceeding in their main design, had suddenly married

The fire continued to approach on the right with alarming rapidity, extending to the centre, and it was clear that the right was doubling upon the left. The enemy had compelled us to make a complete change of front on that wing, and were pressing the centre.

Gen. Rosecrans, with spleudid during, dashed into the furious are, and sending his staff along the lines, started Beatty's brigade forward. Some six batteries opened, and sustaining a magnificent fire. Directly a tremendous shout was raised along the whole line, and the enemy began to Van Clove's division was sent to the right, and Colone! Realty's brigade in front.

The General urged the troops forward. The rebels, terribly punished, were driven back fully a mire. The same aplendid bravery was displayed in the lines and the enemy made formidable demonstrations on our left, while they prepared for another one-linear one-linear way. We were suddenly massed against their forces on the left, crossing the river, or moving under cover of bluffs on the right, and for about two hours the fight raged with unremitting fury, to the advantage of the enemy for a considerable length of time, when they were checaed by our murderous fire, of both musketry and artitlery.

The scene at this point was magnificently terrible. The whole battle was in full view, the enemy deploying right and left, bringing up their batteries in fine style, our own vomiting smoke and iron missiles upon them with awful fury, and our gallant fellows moving to the faces to escape the rebei fire until the moment for action. Shell and shot fell around like hail. General Rosecrans was himself incessantly exposed. It is wonderful that he escaped. His Chief of Staff, the noble Lieutenant Col. Garesche, bad his head taken off by a round shot, and the blood be pattered the General and some of the staff. Lieut. Lylan Kirk, just behind him, was lifted clear out of his saddle by a bullet which shattered his left arm.

Three orderlies and gallant Sergeant Richmond, of the Fourth United States cavalry, were killed, not ten feet exhausted by his rapid and incessant assaults, took up a position not assaulable without abundant artillery, and the fire on both sides slackened, and finally silenced at dark—the battle having raged eleven hours, the loss of life on our side being considerable, and the terrific nature of the field comparatively limited.

Our casualty list that day, excluding captures, did not exceed perhaps fifteen hundred, of whom not more than one-fourth were killed. This is attributable to the care taken to make our men lie down. The enemy's loss must have been more severe. But among our lesses we mourn such noble souls as General Sill, General August Willich, Colonel Garesche, Colonel Miner Milliken, First Ohio cavalry; Colonel Haw-kins, Thirteenth Ohio; Colonel McKee, Third Kentucky; Colonel Forman, Fifteenth Kentucky; Colonel Kitl and Second Lieutenant Colonel Shephord, Eighteenth regulars; Major Carpenter, Tenth regulars; Captain Edgerton First Ohio battery, and his two lieutenants and many more. No other generals were hurt.

Among our wounded are General Kirk, General Van Clove (so reported); Colonel Moody, Seventy-fourth Obio-who established a splendid reputation; Colonel Larrabys Ninety-ninth Obio; —— King, Fifteenth regulars; Major, Foot, Rieker, Siemmer, Eleventh regulars; Captains Bell Wise, Barry, McDonnell, Power and Yerk, and Lieutenant McAllister, Fifteenth regulars; Major Townsen, Eighteenth regulars; Captain Long, Fourth regulars; Cavalry Lieu-Inauguration of Governor Horatio Seymour.

GOVERNOR MORGAN'S FAREWELL

ALBANY, Jan. 1, 1863.

Inaugural of Governor Seymour.

The manguration of Governor Seymour took place in the Assembly Chamber of the State Capitol to-day at eleven o'clock, in presence of a large and distinguished ssemblage. Many of the Seymour clubs and other denocratic organizations from different parts of the State were represented, and a number of the leading represen tatives of the party were present. The crowd filled the chamber and the rotunds of the Capitol, and covered the park in front of the building. Among the delegabodies in attendance was a committee from the Youn-Men's Democratic Union Association of New York city, consisting of Messrs William, E. Frost, M. L. Harris, William C. Rhodes, Benjamin Ray, Daniel Young, R. B. Bradford, J. D. Hunt, Gideon J. Tucker and John McKeon So large a gathering has not been witnessed at the inauguration of a Governor of this State for many years. The oath of office was administered to Governor Sey mour and Lieutenant Governor Jones by Secretary of State Ballard, and when the requirements of the constitu tion had been complied with, Governor Morgan, who appeared at the Speaker's desk in company with Governor Seymour, spoke as follows:-

Governor Seymour, the oath you have just taken fulfils the requirements of the constitution and laws, and again formally invests you with the high office of Go vernor of the State of New York. As such I now greet vernor of the State of New York. As such I now gree-you, and tender to your administration all the suppor which a private citizen can give. Confiding in your abi-lity and patriotism, the people of this, your native State, have called you to the discharge of duties second only in importance to those of the Chief Magistrate of the United States. A change of administration here has never taken place at a period so crowded with vital events as now. Fortunately the duties are not new most perplexing nature, yet in their conscientious dis-charge you will have the approbation of all good men. Herein will be your reward. In closing an administrawhich I have found it necessary to assume more than ordinary responsibilities, I should have felt a satisfaction in speaking in detail, especially in reference to military affairs, but as usage has not sanctioned this, the chiefs of the several staff departments have been directed to make full reports for use. To these I refer for specific information as to the part New York has borne in the war. As, however, you will be scrupulously careful in rela-tion to whatever concerns the honor or the interest of the State, I know it will be gratifying for you to be assured that its credit never stood higher; that its funded debt is rapidly diminishing; that its principal and interest have been promptly paid in coin; that the public funds are ade. quate for every proper demand on them; that the surplus revenues of the canals have increased from $900,000 in 1858 to $4.000,000 in 1852, and that taxation 1858 to $4,000,000 in 1852, and that taration may be largely reduced the present year, and this, when scarcely less than a quarter of a million of our people are voluntarily engaged in the military service of the country. Of such a State, and with such a record, we may well be proud. Would that I could speak this encouragingly of national affairs; but we may not anticipate immediate peace, Millions of people, aroused by imaginary wrongs to fierce passion, cannot at once return to reason. Their resentments must have time to cool, and the delusion under which they act to be dissipated; but the day must surely come when the people of the South will again own the same sovereignty, houor the same laws, and fight under the same flag. At present we must use the sword; it cannot be sheathed until those in robellion shall lay down their arms, and the constitution and the laws have uniform sway.

Governor Seymour thanked Governor Morgan for the kind expression of his good wishes, and congratulated him on the able close of his administration.

Governor Seymour then said:-I have selemnly sworn to support the constitution of the United States, with all its grants, restrictions and guarantees, and I shall support it. I have also sworn to support the constitution of the State of New York, with all its powers and rights, and I shall uphoid it. I have sworn to support the duties of the office of Governor of the State, and with your aid they shall be faithfully per-Those constitutions and laws are meant for the guidance of our official conduct and for your protection and welfare. The first law recorded for my observance is that declaring that "it shall be the duty of the laws "are faithfully executed," and so help me God the laws "are faithfully executed," and so help me God they shall be. He would not dwell, on the present occasion, on our national affairs. Our bosition as a State has been happily alluded to by my predecessor. My views on the subject will be laid before the Legislature.

While knowing that his position gave him little control over national affairs, he (Gov. Seymour) yet ventured to trust that before the end of his term of service the country would be again great, glorious and united, as it once was.
